During the year the Selectmen have caused the school houses in Districts No. 2, 3, 7, and 12 to be painted, and a few small repairs to be made at a cost of $81.46; and they would suggest that a small appropriation be made for ordinary repairs.

Forty-five new guide boards have been put up, all, except three, on iron posts at all points considered necessary, with three exceptions, at a cost of $116.16. Boards and posts are on hand for the needed places, ready to be put up as soon as the condition of the ground will admit.

Sewall N. Martin was appointed Superintendent of Burials. He has attended fifteen funerals during the year. The following appointment of sextons was made: Philo C.

Burgess, at the Pond; W. F. Hulitt, "Over the hill;" Sewall N. Martin, at Upper Gloucester; Charles A. Winslow, at Lower Corner; M. C. Clark, at the Webber Yard. The hearse has been painted and repaired, and a few necessary repairs at the yards, at a cost of $57.00.

By agreement with the municipal officers of the City of Auburn, Richard Dresser, Esq., was employed to survey and perambulate the line between New Gloucester and the City of Auburn, which was done to our satisfaction. The returns have been made and duly recorded.

In order to meet the demands against the town during the first part of the year, on account of road and school bills, it was found necessary to hire one thousand dollars. The same has since been paid by the Treasurer.

In regard to the school house lot in District No. 1, we made an earnest but unsuccessful effort to purchase a suitable lot. In view of the fact that we could not secure what we deemed a suitable lot at present without resorting to a legal process, and perplexing delays, and that there is a prospect of making an arrangement that will be more satisfactory to the citizens of the district than any purchase we could make, we thought it best for the matter to be laid before the town for their further consideration.

REPORT OF OVERSEERS OF THE POOR.

The Overseers in discharging their duties have had some perplexing cases to contend with, but all such cases have been disposed of in a manner considered best for the interest of all parties concerned.

Notice was received from the Overseers of the Town of Oxford, that the family of Emmons Verrill had fallen into distress in that town, and that they had relieved them. The case was investigated and it was thought necessary to assist them, as Mrs. Verrill was sick with consumption and not in a condition to be removed to the farm. She has since died. The bills are not all in, but the whole expense will probably amount to $50.00.

The case of John Golding has been more fully investigated, and it was found that he probably has no settlement in the State; in that case the children would follow the settlement of their mother, which would be the town of Baldwin. A conference has been held with the Overseers of the town of Baldwin and the case can probably be settled without a suit.

James A. Verrill has been supported at his home for the past year, at a cost of one dollar per week.

The case of Dorcas Pickett is a perplexing one. She being a deaf mute and being unable to read or write, it was thought best to provide for her partial support for the past year at her home, at a cost of $32.65, for the following items: One stove, $8.15; wood, $14.50; provisions, $10.00.

Wesley Strout having been sick and he and his family in need of relief, it was furnished to the amount of $5.00.

Carrie Bell Tripp still remains with Mr. Rufus S. Starbird, and Deborah E. Tripp, with Mr. S. A. Plummer, and it is thought that both have good homes.

It may be seen that a sum of $161.15 has been paid out for medical attendance and supplies, for poor people not living on the Town Farm, but having a settlement in town. It is impossible to get along without this kind of expense, but it has been the endeavor to keep it as low as possible.

The amount expended for pauper supplies, for paupers living in town, and having a legal settlement in other towns, has been $66.80, which will be repaid to the town.

Dr. F. C. Hall was employed to furnish all medical attendance to the paupers belonging to this town, for the year 1881, for the sum of $30.00.

We think the Town Farm has been well managed and the poor well cared for, but in our opinion the condition of the buildings is such as calls for serious consideration and prompt action.

Amount of stock and supplies on the farm: 1 horse, 1 yoke oxen, 7 cows, 2 two-year old heifers, 11 sheep, 35 hens, 2 swine, 15 tons hay, 40 bushels corn, 70 bushels potatoes, 58 bushels oats, 300 pounds pork, 100 pounds beef, 60 pounds cheese, 3 hams, 2 barrels cider, 1 barrel flour, lard, butter, beans, and vegetables sufficient for the use of the family.

We have re-engaged Charles A. Andrews and wife to take charge of the farm for the ensuing year. The number of poor on the farm is five.

Upon examination of the foregoing tables some facts are plainly visible, and will undoubtedly arrest your attention, and you will be led to inquire why so small a part of our pupils are in regular attendance upon the schools. While your teachers may not in all cases be such as we could wish, we cannot but feel that a very great part of the fault is with the parents who, instead of helping the teachers with their influence and overlooking the many imperfections that will ever be found, are too ready, for reasons that are trivial, to pronounce the schools a failure and allow their children to attend or not, as they choose, thereby lessening the interest of the school, not only by their irregular attendance, but by their influence on other pupils.

You will also observe the increased cost per pupil for education in the smaller districts, and we would recommend that the subject of consolidating some of the districts be carefully considered, not only for reasons of economy, but for the best interests of education.

Our schools during the past year have been quite successful and we think fully up to those of previous years. The amount of work done has been very generally good. Most of the teachers have been competent and faithful, and the greater part of our scholars deserve praise for their diligent and honest study. We regret to say that in a few instances there has been a want of co-operation on the part of parents and their children, with the teacher, which has been the means of working great harm to schools which would otherwise have been markedly successful.

We find that those teachers who are well qualified and have had special training for their business accomplish the most and best work. "As is the teacher so is the school" has become an axiom. It may safely be said that no superior school system can anywhere be found at the present time, which is not largely dependent for its success upon well qualified and trained teachers. To meet the increasing necessity, Maine has established and sustains three most excellent Normal Schools, and we take this opportunity to express our satisfaction in the character of these schools, as shown in the work of teachers we have employed.

It is the aim of the Normal School to give instruction in the fundamental principles of teaching, hence the study of the mind, its organization, the various stages of its development, and the laws which govern its action, are made a specialty. The principles which underlie all true instruction, and which have been demonstrated by the first educators of the world, are there studied and discussed; and the best methods of the best teachers are not only brought under the daily observation of the students, but are carried into actual practice by them before they can receive the diploma of the school. It necessarily follows that the work of teachers thus prepared is superior to that which they could do without such preparation.

We would by no means take the position that all trained teachers are successful, neither would we set aside as worthless all untrained teachers, but we do claim and believe that the value of the best teachers among us who have had no special fitting for the work would be greatly enhanced by a course of special training in the Normal School.

We have often felt obliged to report teachers as doing good work, and a term of school as a profitable term, when the statements thus made were but relatively true and deserved. These teachers were able in many respects, were faithful and conscientious in the discharge of duty and, judged by their standard of what constitutes good work in the school room, few adverse criticisms could be made. But the character of the work done by a teacher who has no guide in teaching but the text-book, who assigns for lessons a definite number of pages to be memorized, who tests the knowledge of the pupils by asking the printed questions at the foot of the page, differs greatly from that of the teacher whose work is based upon definite principles, who, freed from the trammels of the text-book, but master of the subject in hand, is at liberty to devote his power to so guiding and shaping the mental operations of the pupils as to secure clear comprehension of the matter taught.

The old routine of the school room is ill adapted to fit our boys and girls for the demands and work of to-day. In place of the old-time process of cramming, we must have methods that will sharpen the wits, strengthen the reason, and cultivate all the mental and moral powers. We earnestly recommend all teachers and would-be teachers to avail themselves of the advantages offered by the Normal Schools.

In conclusion we will once more call your attention to the fact that the success of our schools does largely depend upon the interest and co-operation of parents. Your school committee may be ever so efficient, you may employ the best teachers, yet, unless parents send their pupils regularly and promptly for instruction, and, furthermore, unless they visit the schools and encourage teachers in their work, the school funds will not and can not be used to the best advantage.
